The Point Hotel recently made the dreams of the Mossel Bay NSRI Station a reality when they donated the funds necessary to purchase an inflatable stretcher. As indicated by Dawie Zwiendelaar, Station Commander for Mossel Bay NSRI, "The purchase of this floating stretcher is long overdue and will be an invaluable asset for rescues in areas which are difficult for our vessels to operate in safely."

Louis Harris, owner of The Point Hotel, who has a long personal history with the Mossel Bay NSRI station said " it was my pleasure and honour to be able to contribute such a useful piece of equipment which will make rescues easier for the NSRI volunteers and assist them in continuing with the superb work they do for our local community."
